FIFTIETH YEAR. NUMBER 74 | CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1933 | THREE CENTS

WETS BELIEVE HOUSE MARGIN IS SUFFICIENT

4-YEAR TERMS FOR RECORDER, CLERK BACKED

White's Name Needed to Extend Mrs. Morris' Tenure In Office.

BILL IS APPROVED

Senate Okehs Clerks' Extension Measure.

Four-year terms for county recorders and clerks of court loomed today after favorable action on such bills in the Ohio legislature Tuesday.

The Senate passed the recorder's bill and the measure is now on Gov. George White's desk awaiting his signature which is expected to be attached.

If the governor approves the bill the term of Mrs. Mary G. Morris, Pickaway-co recorder, will be extended to Jan. 1, 1937, instead of Jan. 1, 1935, as the term now stands.

Supporters of the bill declared that election of recorders every two years upsets the technical routine of the office in a manner harmful to the business of the county.

Rep. Jesse J. Gilbert, Dayton Democrat, introduced the bill which had already passed the House. The Senate voted 25-5 for it.

The Senate also passed the Mathews bill providing four-year terms for county clerks. This measure now goes to the House of Representatives.

Ferd M. Pickens, local clerk of courts, has been very active in supporting this measure in his position as president of the Ohio Clerks' association.

WHITE'S FORCES ADMONISH MYERS

Senate Assails Ohio Secretary; Passes Patrol, Motor License Transfer Bills.

COLUMBUS, March 29.—Creation of a state highway patrol of 60 members and transfer of the bureau of motor vehicles to the state highway department will be started soon as a result of two bills which the state Senate had passed today after harshly criticizing Secretary of State George S. Myers.

Senator Walter S. Ruff (R), of Canton, assailed Myers for allegedly trying to influence the Senate against the two McNamee bills which had been backed by Governor George White. Other senators also joined in the attack on Myers.

After continuing the criticism for almost an hour, the Senate adopted the bill to transfer the bureau of motor vehicles from the Secretary of State's department by a vote of 26 to 0. The highway patrol bill was passed by a vote of 21 to 5.

Vote on Ohio's 3.2 Beer Bill This Afternoon Seen Certain

DRYS WORK HARD

Close Vote is Predicted by Observers

COLUMBUS, March 29.—Boasting that enough votes have been corralled to open Ohio's beer spigots on April 7, wets today sought to suspend the rules of the House of Representatives and hold the final, dramatic roll-call on the Ackerman 3.2 per cent beer bill this afternoon.

Convinced that they cannot lose, wet leaders demanded that the grand finale of their assault on prohibition be staged at once — today. The stage was set last night when the judiciary committee, by a vote of 14 to 0, recommended the bill for passage. It passed the Senate Monday night.

Although stand-pat drys refused to admit defeat, leaders of "the beerage" declared they had mustered more than the 90 votes necessary to pass the bill as an emergency measure. If they succeed, Ohio will quaff legal beer with the rest of the country on April 7.

FAILURE POSSIBLE

Failing, they will prevent the sale of legal beer for at least 90 days, and possibly until after next November.

Led by Representatives W. D. Ditmars (D) of Holmes-co, Gus Kasch (D) of Akron and William H. Beard (D) of Dayton, a band of willful drys summoned all their cleverness in an attempt to defeat the emergency clause. They had no hope of defeating the bill, the fight was expected to be won or lost by three or four votes.

Under suspension of the rules, the voluminous bill can be read once "by title only" by Clerk Dwight Matchette, and the customary second and third readings can be passed. Debate can then be started at once.

Anticipating sharp arguments over the bill, radio stations have arranged to broadcast the proceedings

C. OF C. HEARS OF SALES TAX

Rep. Oakley Spaght Expresses Views and Ideas of Plan At Meeting.

Thirty-five business men heard an excellent talk on a general sales tax by Oakley Spaght, Summit-co Representative, at the Chamber of Commerce meeting Tuesday evening. Mr. Spaght's address followed an excellent supper at 6 o'clock His talk dealt with the general sales tax bill he has presented in the House His plan would bring relief to real estate, he said.

At the outset he described a sales tax as 'the revenue accruing from the sales of tangible goods and services, without deduction for cost of the goods sold, loss of any kind or expense. In other words, it is a retail sales tax paid by the consumer at the point of ultimate consumption."

He declared a sales tax is advocated because the foundation of the tax structure built upon the ability of real estate to pay is crumbling. The need, therefore, of a new tax system is stressed.

EXPLAINS SALES TAX

"The sales tax," the speaker declared, "would apply equally to all, everyone having to pay simply in proportion to his expenditures. The only way to escape the tax would be to refrain from spending. At present only 15 per cent of the people in Ohio pay a direct tax.

A sales tax operation is very simple. The merchant adds the tax when the sale is made. Assuming the tax is 2 per cent which is the rate now proposed, when you purchase a five dollar hat you pay a ten cent tax, or one dollars' worth of groceries a two cent tax. The consumer pays the tax. The merchant is merely the collector, and in every instance adds the tax If the sales is a fifty cent sale the tax is one penny, making the purchase fifty-one cents. The merchant, of course, says this cannot be done - that on small sales the merchant will have to absorb the tax," he said "It seems strange that we pay the Federal tax of one cent on a quart of oil, and yet we argue that we cannot collect the tax on other commodities."

In the state of Mississippi, where a two per cent sales tax has been in effect since May 1st of last year, the merchants charge no tax

F. D. SEEKS TO ALTER STOCK MARKET RULE

"Let Buyer Beware" Rule to Be Eliminated in Board Message

INFORMATION ASKED

Immediate Action to Be Taken, Claim

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Roosevelt moved formally today to change the ancient rule of the stock market that the buyers should beware to read "let the seller bewear."

He submitted to Congress a lengthy bill designed to force all concerns floating new issues of securities to give the public full information concerning the background of the concern.

Briefly, the burden of "telling the whole truth' is placed on the seller of securities

Soon after the message was read in the House Rep. Rayburn (D) of Texas, chairman of the house interstate commerce committee, introduced a bill carrying out the president's proposals. His committee will start hearings on the legislation Friday and he hoped "they will be brief."

LOSSES RECALLED

In his message, Mr. Roosevelt frankly stated that severe losses have been sustained by the investing public in the past because of practices "neither ethical nor honest" on the part of many persons and corporations selling securities.

"What we seek is a return to a clearer understanding of the ancient truth that those who manage banks, corporations, and other agencies handling or using other people's money are trustees acting for others," he said.

"This is but one step in our broad purpose of protecting investors and depositors. It should be followed by legislation relating to the better supervision of the purchase and sale of all property dealt in on exchanges and by legislation to correct unethical and unfaith practices on the part of officers and directors of banks and other corporations."

REGULATE SALES

The proposal to regulate sale of new securities would require the filing of full information with the federal trade commission before any issue was undertaken, and

TWO JUDGES HEAR APPEAL OF N. M'NEAL

Error in Common Pleas Court Trial Charged by His Counsel

MAUCK IS ABSENT

Decision Withheld Until Later Date

A vigorous effort to obtain reversal of the common pleas court verdict which found Newell McNeal, Williamsport, guilty of a statutory charge, was made before two judges of the district court of appeals seated here Wednesday morning.

The arguments for reversal were made by Tom A. Renick and C. A. Weldon, McNeal's attorneys, who have carried the case to high court charging error in the court of common pleas. Ray W. Davis, prosecutor, and Emmitt L. Crist, prosecutor at the time the conviction was returned, are representing the state.

The McNeal attorneys charged several errors all of which they claimed warranted reversal of the verdict.

They charged first that George Winfough a member of the McNeal jury, should not have been a juror because his wife was a client of Emmitt L. Crist at the time of the trial.

CITE CHARGES

They asserted that Judge Joseph W. Adkins in his general charge to the jury did not definitely explain the reasonable doubt statute. It was also charged by the convicted man's counsel that Judge Adkins tried to "force" a verdict in voluntarily instructing the jury after it had deliberated for quite a while.

Failure to satisfactorily explain the presumption of innocence statute and failure of the state's chief witness, Margaret Potticus of Deercreek-twp, to admit her condition before she did were also included in the McNeal plea for reversal.

The McNeal attorneys also charged Mrs. Lillian Hott, Darbyville, was prejudiced although she was on the jury. It developed that after Mr. McNeal was found guilty Mrs. Hott went to Judge Adkins and Prosecutor Crist and told them that McNeal had approached her daughter and told her it would be to Mrs. Hott's interest if she would favor his side

ITALY'S "DRUNKEN HOUSE" IS DOOMED

Built With Wine for Water by Tipsy Workmen.

Foggia, Italy.—The strange story of Foggia's "Drunken House" that was actually built with wine as the result of a curious feud between two rich Italian landowners in 1850 came to light here with plans to destroy the freak structure.

It was built in one night by the late Tommasco Antonio Bucci, famous vine-grower, with the aid of a friend's eleven sons—for the sole purpose of annoying Bucci's irascible neighbor, Don Francesco Saverio Figliola, wealthy cattle raiser and rural representative of the then king of Naples.

It appears that the fame of Bucci's wine spread far and wide and many people flocked to the vinegrower's place to get the product at its source—much to the annoyance of Don Francesco.

Exasperated by Don Francesco's complaints, Bucci finally decided to play a trick on him. Don Francesco's house commanded an imposing view of the city in which the landowner took a tremendous pride. Bucci determined to build a house on his own property that would just hide that view.

After he bought his building materials, he found his neighbor, official representative of the king of Naples, had ordered that no laborers take employment from him.

Bucci, more determined now than before, called into consultation his friend, Giovanni Raho, who volunteered the services of his eleven sons.

But as soon as Don Francesco learned of this, all the wells of the city were ordered closed and a guard stationed at each one.

But an ingenious idea came to Bucci. If plaster could be mixed with water, why couldn't it be mixed with wine?

That night there was a rumbling of rolling barrels in the Bucci cellar as his friend's eleven sons got busy. Barrel after barrel of the strong red wine for which Bucci was noted gurgled into mortar.

The result was a beautiful vermillion colored plaster with which the eleven youths working through the night with frenzied energy put up the walls of a two story structure that just concealed Don Francesco's view.

During the night the vapor of the boiling wine gave the eleven youths the equivalent of an all night alcoholic jag and though they had refrained from touching a drop of the liquor they staggered drunkenly as the night wore on.

With the dawn there was a curious sight: a strange irregular structure with lopsided walls something like the lines in a futuristic drawing.

OHIOANS TAKE SECOND PLACE

Collins and Graham, Dover Bowlers, Scatter Maples In ABC Tourney.

COLUMBUS, March 29—Ohio bowlers, spurred by a pace-setting Dover, O., pair who crash into second place of the doubles event yesterday, monopolized the championship alleys at the American Bowling Congress here today

Two shifts were on tap in the minor events this afternoon to be followed by a new bombardment in the five-man event tonight.

The Ohio keglers were given a spectacular send-off yesterday when the Dover team of Eddie Collins and Alex Graham slammed the ten pins for a total of 1304 points which ran them into second place in the "Big Ten standings of the doubles event

FOUR PINS SHORT

The 1304 score was just four pins short of the division leaders Frank Murza and Johnny Kintgen of Chicago.

Collins scattered the pins for 205, 235 and 203 while Graham, who placed second in the singles division at last year's tournament with a score of 719, rapped off scores of 189 218 and 254

The only other change in the "Big Ten" standings occurred in the all-events division where Carl Shott of Huntington, W Va., went into a tie with Frank Murza for ninth place on a grand total score of 1879. Scott had 619 in the team event, 626 in the doubles and 634 in the singles

Top honors in the five-man division last night went to a Bradford, Pa., quintet, the Bodine Hardwares, who knocked out a score of 2834 The score was not quite big enough to land the team on the Big Board however

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ASHVILLE SCHOOL NOTES

The following fifth grade pupils have had perfect attendance for the last four weeks Ralph Carley, Betty Brobeck, Charlotte Courtright, Helen Elmore, Andrew Gray, Margaret Glick, Junior Gregg, Ray Kraft, William Martin, Thelma Myers, Junior Nefi, Cecil McGlone, Florence Smith, Annabell Ward, Earl White, and Thelma Winner.

The seventh and eighth grade boys expect to wind up the basketball season this week with a game between the two grades The grade boys expect to organize a recreation ball league of four teams this spring. Most of these games will be played as a part of their physical education program

The Seniors have decided on "The Red-Headed Step-child" for their class play. The cast has been picked and practice will soon be started

Judith-Schlegel, Ruth Morrison, Kathleen Creager, Alice Bowers, and Max Borror took the Scholarship test last Friday at Washington-twp high school

The Ashville high school officially closed its basketball season last Tuesday night, March 21, when the finals in the class tournament were played Several surprises were in store for the fans which made the games very interesting, especially since the outcome was constantly in doubt until the last whistle blew.

The first game found the sophomore girls fighting hard trying to conquer the seniors, but the seniors were just a little too strong for them and they went down in defeat in the last minute rally put on by the senior girls.

The freshmen girls surprised the juniors by trouncing them 16-10 and giving the juniors last place. Jean Martin did most of the damage against the juniors scoring the first 13 points for the freshmen.

The freshmen boys also surprised the junior boys when they came from behind to tie the score and force the junior boys into an overtime period The juniors finally won, but had to exert themselves to do so

In the last game the sophomore boys surprised the seniors by outfighting them completely and winning 23 to 19 which gave them the class championship for 1933

Maurice Graham was elected honorary captain in a regular meeting held last week for the very successful 1932 and 1933 basketball season.

Ruth Smith, a junior, successfully represented Ashville high school by winning second place in both the oral and written spelling contests held last Saturday at the Jackson-twp school.

The written contest was especiall hard and we feel that our representatives, Esther Reid, Edwina Schlegel, Charlotte Rhodes, Jasper Hedges and Ruth Smith did exceptionally well to make an average grade of 76 per cent ranging from 69 to 98, for we know that some contestants, supposedly the best in their schools made as low as 8 and 9 per cent and many were in the teens and twenties.

None of our oral contestants, Esther Reid, Betty Radcliff, Jasper Hedges, Gretchen Hedges, and Ruth Smith went down until more than half of all contestants were already down

Our winning class for attendance in the grades during March was grade eight, which also had a perfect record in punctuality In the high school the seniors also made the best record in both attendance and punctuality

The Junior class play, given last Friday evening was one of the best presented here in years. To pick the star character would be a difficult task, for each one certainly did exceedingly well. A large audience was present

"THAT LITTLE GAME"

MEN'S SOCIAL CLUB IS FORMED AT M. E. CHURCH; 100 PRESENT; NAME DR. PHILLIPS PRESIDENT

Meeting Enthusiastic One With Crowd Unexpectedly Large; E. I. Gephart, L. E. Seitz, H. W. Plum Fill Other Official Chairs.

The spirit which must have animated the local organization of a Men's Brotherhood in the First M. E. Church of Circleville some twenty years ago, was revived once more Tuesday evening when, following a splendid dinner sponsored by the Young Women's Guild of the church, a group of nearly a hundred men, re-assembled in a business session and unanimously agreed to the immediate organization of a Men's Social Club.

As the result of a previous conference of a small group of enthusiastic fore-runners a few days ago, L. E. Leitz presented a report on name, membership, officers, the time of meeting and so forth, as follows:

1.—That the name of the organization be the "Men's Social Club" of the First Methodist Church.

2.—That there be no limitation on membership. All men are welcome.

3.—That the officers shall be President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

4.—That terms of office shall be for one year.

5.—That such committees and are essential shall be appointed.

6.—That the ladies of the church shall have preference in preparation of all dinners.

7.—That the date of meeting shall be the last Tuesday evening of each month at 6:30 p. m.

The report was adopted and the following officers were duly elected:

For President, G. D. Phillips.

For Vice President, E. I. Gephart.

For Secretary, L. E. Seitz.

For Treasurer, H. W. Plum.

Preceding the report by Mr. Seitz and the election of officers, a number of brief talks were made by Messrs. Pontious, Rife, Plum, Terwilliger, Rausenberger, Thomas, Sponsler, Barnhart and Fullen.

The music for the evening was dispensed by the Epworth League orchestra, directed by Mrs. Harry Griner. These young people make splendid music and were enthusiastically applauded.

The pastor, Rev. Eichinger, presided at the meeting and as an introduction to the business session, spoke interestingly of the motives and purposes of the reorganization of the Church Brotherhood, albeit, under a different name but with the same social and community consequences in view. At the suggestion of Mr. Rife, the audience stood for a moment in thoughtful rememberance of former members of the Brotherhood, many of them long since gone to their reward.

The splendid attendance at this meeting was a genuine surprise. It was a common remark that a year or two ago, no such a determined group of men could have been assembled and for the collective purpose of reviving again a Men's Social organization of the Church. It is a good omen. If, in any important sense that church gathering is indicative of a change in the people of the country at large, the Utonia of a kindlier relationship and a more helpful service among men, may not be so far off after all. At all events, the world will never be saved until it has been rescued from its sordid greed and isolated selfishness. It was Robert Shailor Holmes who wrote—

Then ring ye forth the clarion call again,
"To build the better day the world needs (better) men."

Care Assures Diabetic Child of Normal Life

Early Recognition, the Giving of Insulin and Properly Regulated Diet Will Control the Disease, Says Authority

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY I read an encouraging report, covering the advances made in the treatment of children who have diabetes. The discovery of insulin has changed the outlook in this disease. It is an outstanding medical achievement and one that has saved the lives of thousands of men, women and children.

It is a misfortune to have diabetes in early life. But children so afflicted are no longer doomed, as they used to be. When the disease is recognized early and insulin is given, the sufferer can continue a normal life. Sometimes diet alone is sufficient to control the ailment.

Let me warn you against placing too much faith in the idea that diabetes is curable. Though tremendous strides have been made in the treatment of this disease, complete cure has not been discovered. Frankness compels me to say that insulin does not cure diabetes. But it controls the disease and permits the sufferer to carry on a useful normal life.

Care of the Child

Children suffering from diabetes are now assured of normal growth and development. But, as I have said, this is possible only when the disease is recognized, the insulin prescribed and the diet properly regulated.

Under no circumstances should insulin be given other than under the physician's supervision. He and only he is in a position to determine whether insulin is necessary, and if it is necessary, what dosage is best.

The diabetic child should be taught to eat his food slowly and carefully. Explain the disease so that he may understand what food and how much food to take. The child should rest before and after meals. He should not be treated as an invalid, but warning should be given of the dangers associated with faulty diet and carelessness in matters relating to the general health.

How Insulin Is Given

Insulin should be given at the same time every day. Bear in mind that meals must be eaten at definite hours. Irregularity is dangerous when insulin is being given.

May I assure all worried mothers that if a child sleeps well, eats well and is gaining in weight, there is no need for alarm. Merely because one of the parents or grandparents suffers from diabetes is no reason for fearing the outlook.

Diabetes should be suspected if the child drinks an unusual amount of water. Overactivity of the kidneys is another sign. A child suffering from this disease may have an excellent appetite, but lose weight in spite of it.

When the disease is suspected, the discharges should be tested for sugar. A chemical analysis of the blood should be made to determine the actual amount of the sugar present. The information gained in this way will determine whether insulin should be prescribed.

We are indebted to the brilliant work of those scientists who have awakened the hope of a cure in this disease. It has changed our outlook on diabetes in children. Let us hope for scientific success in other fields.

Recipe Requests Answered By Mrs. George O. Thurn

Dear Friends in Circleville:

I always want to scold you when I read through the recipe requests handed in at the Cooking School, for so many of you ask for French Dressing. Asking for such a simple and essential recipe means that you have no cook book. For the most elementary cook book contains at least one recipe for this important dressing. Please save pennies and buy a good cook book; not because I do not want to give you recipes, but because a cook book is absolutely necessary to good cookery, variation of the menus, and adequate meal planning.

Here is the French Dressing recipe, with variations:

FRENCH DRESSING

Use the best olive oil for delicate flavor and texture, or one of the vegetables or nut salad oils which you may have tried and prefer, or which for economy's sake you must use. The recipe makes one half cup, enough to dress salad for at least six people, or more, if the family does not care for much dressing. Use six tablespoons oil, two tablespoons mild vinegar, paprika, one teaspoon salt, one fourth teaspoon pepper. Mix the dry ingredients, stir in the vinegar and oil, pour into a bottle, being careful to scrape every bit of the seasonings and oil into the bottle. Cork tightly and shake vigorously. Keep tightly corked, and in the refrigerator, using as needed. It will keep indefinitely this way. Always shake thoroughly before using. Mix your salad, dress with the shaken French dressing just before serving.

To vary the flavor, add one fourth teaspoon celery salt; or the same amount of curry powder or a little more curry powder if that flavor is liked; many substitute lemon juice for the vinegar, which is especially delicious on fruit salad mixtures; or use wine or tarragon vinegars in place of cider vinegar; add a few drops of Worcestershire sauce if the dressing is to be used on fish, meat or chicken salads; use grapefruit juice or orange juice, and a little less oil if the salad is all fruit.

CINNAMON TOAST

For six slices of toast, use two tablespoons butter, one or two teaspoons cinnamon, two tablespoons brown sugar. Cream the butter and sugar thoroughly together, work in the cinnamon and continue to cream until smooth and evenly mixed (use a small wooden spoon for this for best results). Spread on buttered toast, lay the toast on a baking sheet and run under the broiler flame until the mixture bubbles. This is about one minute. Substitute maple sugar for the brown, or use granulated sugar; add finely chopped dates or raisins; for tea, cut the toast in fancy shapes or narrow strips.

SOUR CREAM PIE

One cup sour cream, one cup sugar, one half cup chopped raisins, two level tablespoons flour; yolks two eggs well beaten, nutmeg, cloves, one half teaspoon cinnamon. Beat the eggs then add to the cream, blend with sugar and flour mixed, add raisins and cinnamon and a small prinkling of the cloves and nutmeg. Bake in a lower crust (unbaked), and when done (moderate oven twenty-five to thirty minutes spread on the stiffly whipped whites of the eggs, then put back in the hot oven until the meringue is delicately browned on its highest points.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE

Mix two and one half cups milk one and one half cups brown sugar, three tablespoons shortening, yolks of three eggs well beaten, three tablespoons flour stirred smooth with a little milk, one teaspoon salt. Cook this in the double boiler, stirring constantly until thick. Then add two teaspoons vanilla. Let cool, and pour into a baked pastry shell. Cover with meringue made from the whites of the three eggs and a little powdered sugar. Brown a minute or two in the oven.

DATE PUDDINGG

One cup chopped nut meats, three-fourths cup stoned dates, one fourth cup flour, one fourth cup sugar, one half teaspoon baking powder, two eggs, one eighth teaspoon salt. Sift the dry ingredients together, add the nuts and dates, then add the beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites stiffly and mix with the other ingredients, thoroughly blending. Bake in a slow oven, in a pan rubbed with shortening, about one hour, or until cake test shows it is done. Serve with whipped cream, or orange sauce. Serves five or six.

CHICKEN PIE

This is a chicken pie recipe not usually to be found in cook books. For it, use one boiling chicken, two tablespoons shortening, one large onion, two large tomatoes, a few ripe olives, raisins and almonds all finely shredded, and salt and pepper. Boil the chicken until tender, drain and remove the meat from the bones. Put the shortening in a frying pan and brown the onion sliced very fine, and the tomatoes cut in small pieces in it. Add about one fourth cup of the mixed olives, nuts and raisins, measured after shredding. Cook the mixture ten minutes. Add the chicken and seasoning and cook ten more minutes.

Make a rick pie paste and line the bottom and sides of a deep baking dish with it. Pour in the mixture, and cover with paste. Bake forty minutes until the paste is nicely browned. The top cover should be perforated with a fork, as for any pie, before it is pinched into place on the dish. Serves six.

Garden News

WITH this issue the first of the gardening series begins. It is impossible in small space to give directions and information about every phase of gardening, but garden news from leading nurserymen and garden specialists will be condensed here. For special problems, consult your local nurserymen, and seed and tool specialists.

With the new catalogues, plan the coming summer's garden now so that planting time finds you ready with not only the diagram of where certain plants and seeds are to go, but with the plants and seeds and the necessary tools on hand. A growing phase in gardening is to have one-color gardens; such as a garden filled with blue blossoms, or yellow blossoms, or pink. A rainbow garden, where pink, yellow, blue, white and lavender blossoms appear, at the same blooming season, is a neat problem in planning and research.

Lawn Needs Care Now

As soon as the frost is out of the ground, the lawn ought to have a dressing of bone meal. Sprinkle on about one half pound to a square yard of lawn, with one fourth pound of wood ashes in the same space. After a shower or two have washed these in the ground, dress with reliable fertilizers, alternating the bone meal and wood ashes with the fertilizer until midsummer.

Shrubs partly thrown out of the ground by frost should be gently pressed back into place to prevent drying; press the soil firmly into place around them as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Rose bushes protected over winter by inverted hampers, straw covers and other coverings should be uncovered as soon as the grass begins to turn green near them.

Recipes Using Yellow Corn Meal

Nourishing, Economical, This Cereal Adds Variety To Late Spring Menus.

MANY requests have come to the Cooking School lecturer for corn meal recipes, especially corn bread. The following bread is simple but nourishing, and economical. The bread may be served hot with syrup as a breakfast cereal, or hot with honey and butter for luncheon, or cold, as bread for any meal.

Corn Bread

Use three fourths cup yellow corn meal, adding enough sifted white flour to fill the cup level; two teaspoons baking powder; one saltspoon salt; one cup sweet milk; two tablespoons melted shortening; one egg; one third cup sugar. Sift the baking powder with the flours, add salt, milk, egg and melted shortening and the sugar. Beat briskly. Pour into a pan rubbed with shortening. And bake in hot oven for twenty-five minutes. This same batter may be poured into muffin tins (rubbed with shortening) and baked the same length of time.

Corn Meal Crisps

Use seven eights cup of yellow corn meal, one cup boiling water, two and one half tablespoons shortening and one level teaspoon salt. Mix and beat into a smooth batter. If you have no baking sheet, invert a square baking pan, rub the bottom with shortening, and spread the batter on this, evenly and smoothly. Bake in a hot oven. If the edges brown before the center is firm, cut the browned parts away in squares or long strips, and return the pan to the oven until all is browned. Serve in narrow strips, as soon as baked, with salad, or as a luncheon or breakfast bread.

Corn Sticks

For these, a bread stick iron is needed. Such irons are to be found in all well equipped house furnishing departments. The recipe calls for one cup yellow corn meal; three fourths cup white flour; one half cup shortening; one cup sweet milk; one half teaspoon salt; three teaspoons baking powder; one egg. Beat the egg, mix with the milk, then add to the shortening, mixing thoroughly. Work into the sifted, dry ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Heat the bread stick iron, rub with shortening, pour in the batter, and bake in a hot oven. The sticks are done when delicately browned all over, with crisp edge. Serve as luncheon bread, or with soup, salad, or to tempt the child

The Tea Table Should Be Colorful

Small cakes, open face sandwiches, bread and butter or cinnamon toast are the favorite American accessories for afternoon tea. Beautiful silver, fine china, the best cloth and fresh flowers add to the color and appeal of this function.

Cookies For the Tea Table

TWO more kinds of small, delectable cookies should be on the tea table. The following recipes are quickly followed, and they are unusually good.

ROLLED COOKIES

One half pound walnut meats (one level measuring cup); one cup brown sugar; two eggs; two tablespoons flour; one fourth teaspoon salt; one-fourth teaspoon baking powder. Mix and sift the salt, flour and baking powder, stir sugar and nuts together, mix with the flour then stir in the eggs beaten thoroughly. Drop the dough from a teaspoon onto a tin baking sheet rubbed very lightly with shortening. Bake in a hot oven. Leave at least one half inch between the cookies when dropped on the tin. The oven should be hot, not moderate, and the baking not longer than six to eight minutes. Watch the oven closely, remove when firm and when they look done. Roll up into a little cylinder or cone shape, while hot. Serve cold.

PEANUT COOKIES

One fourth cup shortening, one half cup sugar, one egg, two tablespoons milk, one cup flour, three fourths cup of peanuts, put through the meat chopper, one fourth teaspoon salt, one level teaspoon cream of tartar, one half teaspoon soda. Cream the butter and work in the sugar, then the beaten egg and milk. Mix sodo, cream of tartar salt and flour, and sift. Work nuts and flour into first mixture, thoroughly beating. Drop from teaspoon on baking tin, as for rolled cookies. Bake in moderate oven, about eight minutes.

CHOCOLATE COOKIES

One fourth pound sweet chocolate, grated; one cup shortening; two eggs; one half teaspoon salt; three cups flour; three cups sugar; one teaspoon soda; one half teaspoon baking powder; one teaspoon cinnamon; one half cup milk. Mix all the dry ingredients and sift together twice. Then cream shortening and sugar, work in beaten eggs, and gradually add milk and flour alternately. Add only enough flour to make the dough stiff enough to roll. Some flours take up more moisture than others.

Roll thin on a lightly floured board. Cut in any preferred shape, and bake in a moderate oven on a tin lightly dusted with flour. About eight to ten minutes should be long enough.

For the crumbs in this recipe either dry bread or dry cake crumps may be used. Use one cup brown sugar, one half cup shortening; two and one half cup molasses; one half cup strong black coffee; two eggs, beaten; one teaspoon soda; one teaspoon cinnamon; one half teaspoon ground cloves; two and one half cups sifted flour; one half cup chopped seeded raisins. Cream the sugar and shortening together, add the crumbs, the molasses in which the soda is mixed, then the coffee, beaten eggs, cinnamon and cloves. Work in the flour and raisins mixed together. Mix thoroughly, drop from spoon on tin rubbed with shortening, and bake in moderate oven about fifteen minutes.

45 Million Toothbrushes

CONSUMPTION of 45,000,000 toothbrushes a year makes American teeth the cleanest in the world, but it is not enough to keep every American tooth clean and free from the defects. If every man, woman and child in the United States used a tooth brush and used it regularly the production of brushes would have to be doubled.

Dental hygiene is one of the most important branches of health education and cannot be too frequently and eloquently stressed for the benefit of both children and adults. It has only been in recent years that the public has realized the vital importance of sound teeth and grave danger in defective and diseased teeth. In a way, the tooth is considered one of the vital organs. At least, the physiologists class as vital.

To the teeth because of defects of disease, medical science has traced heart disease, rheumatism, neuritis, kidney disorders, gastric ulcers and other organic and blood conditions, which frequently prove fatal. Insanity can also result from oral disorders.

Everyone should have a dental examination at least every six months and parents should consult the dentist as frequently as the family physician. Dentists would be doing their patients a service if they would notify them when their teeth are due for an inspection.

Age of the World

THERE seems to be an eternal and continuous struggle among scientists to figure out the age of the earth. A report of the Smithsonian Institute gives as its opinion that the universe is three billion years old, which would seem to establish a record that not only exceeds all previous guesses hazarded along this line, but which, moreover, sets a standard for future jugglers with figures to shoot at as they attempt to outdo their predecessors.

It is not quite clear to most people why it is so necessary to determine the age of the earth. Here and there new evidences are uncovered by expeditions which have been excavating tombs and ancient ruins for the purpose of studying antiquity. But even the most interesting discoveries do not take the present age back more than a few thousand years at best, and whatever took place before that period, perforce must be largely a matter of conjecture.

Folk Songs

FOR compartively young a nation, the United States has a wealth of folk songs, as many private collections have revealed. Many of the best are the products of isolation, as in the mountains of Kentucky. The Negro cabins in the South and lumber camps of the North have made their contributions. The open cattle ranges of the West, where the cowboys once roamed freely, produced many songs.

But such isolation is largely of the past. Moreover, music of all varities, from classics to jazz, now penetrates to the remotest communties through the radio and other instruments. But it is a penalty of such progress that the folk songs are in danger of being lost. For this reason, the Library of Congress has undertaken the commendable task of making a national collection of American folk songs. As this is a public enterprise, it should find active support in all sections of the country.

CHAPTER FORTY-FIVE

There was an outcry simultaneously from the crowd of buccaneers, then utter silence, as Monsieur de Bernis, having withdrawn his sword, placing one foot for the purpose against the body of his fallen opponent, stood erect, grim, breathing a little hard and mopping the sweat from his brow with the sleeve of his fine cambric shirt.

Standing over Tom Leach as he lay coughing out his evil life upon the sands, Monsieur de Bernis ruefully shook his head, and in the silence his voice rang clear.

"Too fine an end for such as you, my Captain."

The last choking of the buccaneer cough was uttered; the twitchings of his body had ceased, and he lay on his back grinning up at the blue sky that was like a dome of polished steel, before there was any movement in the surrounding crowd. After that single outcry, when their captain had gone down, an awed silence had fallen upon those wild men. Accustomed though they were to scenes of violence and to sudden and bloody deaths, there was something in this abrupt passing of their leader to inspire awe in those wild breasts.

Leach had been of such vitality, and had come scatheless through so many fierce encounters that he had seemed almost immortal to the men he led. And here, almost in the twinkling of an eye, behold him stretched stiff and stark. Wonder, too, now that the thing was done, was stirring in their minds as to what must be the consequences to themselves of their Captain's death.

The silence endured until Bundry roughly now broke his way through the ranks which yielded as readily as earlier they had resisted him. Ellis and Halliwell followed through the gap his passage made.

Monsieur de Bernis looked up at their approach. He was not entirely without alarm, although he contrived to conceal it; but in the main he conceived himself sufficiently protected by the circumstances. Standing where he did, with one shoulder to the sea and the other to the woods, he commanded a wide field of vision. Twenty yards away and above him on the beach, he beheld Miss Priscilla and the Major standing at gaze, and he conceived the fears that must be distressing her, if not on his account, at least on her own, since even now, if this affair should find issue in avenging upon him of the Captain's death, she must suppose that she would be left at the mercy of these ruffians.

For the moment, however, the buccaneers still made no movement. Perhaps they considered that the matter was one beyond their judgment, and they were content to leave it to those four leaders who were now confronting Monsieur de Bernis within the space ringed about. For Wogan was there too, having been there indeed throughout the combat, and it was Wogan whom de Bernis immediately cited as a witness in his own defence when Bundry challenged him.

"How did this happen?" Bundry had asked, his tone harsh, his countenance forbidding, his eyes piercing as gimlets.

"It was forced upon me. I take Wogan here to witness."

Bundry turned to question Wogan with his eyes, and Wogan blinked nervously and answered, as de Bernis counted that he would answer. He might have been less confident had he known of the understanding that had existed between Wogan and the Captain. But the Captain being dead, Wogan swiftly made up his mind that, since Leach's plot had failed, it only remained to ensure the preservation of one upon whom depended the capture of the Spanish plate fleet.

"I hope that you were not unduly alarmed," she heard him saying, in his pleasant, level voice.

"Aye, it's the truth. Bad cess to it! Ye all know how the Captain was feeling towards him, and this morning his humour bubbled over, and he put this quarrel upon him. In fact, as some of ye may have seen, he attacked him before he had even got his sword out, and if Charley hadn't been quick and active, it's murder there would ha' been."

Encouraged by this to greater self-assertion, Monsieur de Bernis supplemented that assurance.

"It would have been unlucky for all of you if things had fallen out otherwise. There would have been no Spanish gold, no broad pieces of eight for you if Leach had killed me as he intended. The dog might have thought of you if he had no thought for his own share of the treasure before yielding to his thirst for my blood. Well, well!" He touched the body with his foot. "There he lies as he deserves, for his treachery to you and to me"

And Bundry, grim-faced ever, and seeing no profit in going against de Bernis at present, nodded slowly. "I warned him. But he was ever a headstrong fool. Maybe he's best quieted."

And by the men who had listened and who had been persuaded by what they heard, this seemed to be accounted a sufficient funeral oration, and closed the matter.

Monsieur de Bernis had been reasonably confident that ultimately he must prevail with them, by means of the prospect of that Spanish gold. But he had expected at the outset a violent explosion of passion over the death of their leader, and he had been bracing himself to meet it. It took him by surprise to discover how little any such effort would be required of him. In the circumstances in which it had befallen, Tom Leach's death was no calamity to any of those predatory rogues who followed him. What mattered was that the man who was to lead them to fortune had been preserved.

And so, with scarcely a lowering glance to follow him, Monsieur de Bernis was permitted to sheathe his sword and resume his garments.

The buccaneers broke up the circle and fell into babbling groups, busily discussing the event, its details and its consequences. Already even sounds of laughter began to punctuate their arguments, whilst the dead man lay there almost at their feet, staring up at them from glazing eyes. Wogan actually came to help Monsieur de Bernis into his coat.

They were at some little distance from the others, and Wogan, with his back to them, muttered so that only de Bernis could hear him.

"You'll come to the hut presently. We'll be after electing a new captain, and you'll be needed." More softly still he added: "Ye'll not be forgetting how I stood your friend, Charley, just now when ye called upon me, and that but for me ye might be carrion this minute. Sure, now didn't your life hang upon my answer?"

"Did it so? I thought it hung upon the Spanish plate fleet. But if ye covet dead men's shoes, ye may have them for me. I'll fellow presently."

He turned from the Irishman, and went briskly up the beach to the three who remained there still at gaze.

Miss Priscilla watched his approach with eyes that were almost of awe. He was so calm, so entirely master of himself, so apparently unruffled, as if he came from some normal daily task. Was he made of iron that he could bear himself thus within a few moments of, himself, facing death and after killing a man?

At closer quarters, when at last he stood before them, she saw that he was very pale under his tan, and she was thankful, relieved -though she scarcely knew why—to discover in him at least this sign of feeling.

"I hope that you were not unduly alarmed," she heard him saying, in his pleasant, level voice. "It was my wish that you should be spared that spectacle." Then he was addressing the Major, who stood there goggle-eyed and loose-mouthed with little of his usual colour in his florid face. "Our practices were not in vain, you see. I had a presentiment that I should need them before we left Maldita."

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

Every so often in the parade of screen offerings there comes a picture that is a sheer delight to see, a picture that tells its story so charmingly and entertainingly that the reviewer is tempted to stand up and shout it to the world.

ROMANCE IS WHIMSICAL

The theme revolves around a whimsical romance between two dreamers, one a little country girl, the other a swaggering young signboard artist who meets her on a Vermont farm. You must see a film of this kind to appreciate it. Airy and at times almost fantastic, the story has been handled in an utterly flawless manner that immediately places Lachman in his first American screen effort among the foremost directors.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The great tragedian of "The Mad Genius," "Svengali" and "Moby Dick" is making audiences crackle and chortle with delight at the Cliftona Theatre tonight and Thursday with the showing of the RKO-Radio Picture "Topaze."

This French comedy of love, intrigue and politics from the modern viewpoint serves to bring to mind the almost forgotten fact that the youngest Barrymore owes his success to comedy.

In "Topaze" Barrymore enacts a professor who conquers his greatest handicap in life—an inherent, honesty—when he is dealt with dishonestly and finds how success can be reconciled with ill-gotten gains. He becomes the most successful, yet charming rascal in Paris and steals the villain's mistress.

He receives excellent support in this role from Myrna Loy, Reginald Mason, Luis Alberni, Albert Conti, Jobyna Howland, Jackie Searl, Frank Reicher and Lowden Adams. Harry d'Arrast directed "Topaze," which is from the adaptation by Benn W. Levy of the play by Marcel Pagnol. The play was a sensational success here and in Europe.

SHOWS RUBBER GAIN

WASHINGTON—Increased production of rubber was reported by French Indo-China in 1932, the only important producing center to record a gain during the year, according to the Commerce Department. Exports of crude rubber from that territory amounted to 14,376 long tons in 1932 compared with 11,713 long tons in the previous year, an increase of 23 per cent. World rubber production decreased from 795,000 tons in 1931 to 765,000 tons in 1932, a decline of 11 per cent.

IOWA STATE COLLEGE TEST

We quote from the Experiment Station of the Iowa State College of Agricultural Department the following:

"A 10 per cent alcohol-gasoline blend would have anti-knock properties greater than ethyl gasoline and in addition such a fuel gives to the motor a 'pep' lacking in any fuel now on the market.

"Various blended fuels of the above type have been tried in five different motors. Most of these tests have been made in a Hudson 1929 six-cylinder model with a compression ratio of six to one. This car had a mileage record of 22,000 miles and had considerable carbon knock. The fuels were tested on a hill near the Curtiss farm by crossing a given mark at the foot of the hill with the speed of eight miles per hour and observing knock and acceleration with wide open throttle on the hill. Ordinary gasoline will give an acceleration of 15 miles per hour under these conditions with considerable knock. Ethyl gas has less knock but does not give any better acceleration. These blended fuels gave anti-knock properties equal to ethyl gas and in addition gave accelerations as high as 25 miles per hour. The 'pep' in this motor was at least equal to that of a new car.

"Fuels of this type have been used in this car for two months (irregularly) and there is no doubt that the carbon deposits have been greatly reduced thereby. In fact, the car has lost most of its value as a test car for these fuels. The fuels show better starting qualities and do not cause spitting and stuttering in the cold motor as does the straight gasoline fuel.

"A Chrysler Imperial Eight motor, which is built to use only ethyl gas, has been giving a mileage of seven miles per gallon. A 3 per cent alcohol blend was used in this car and while this concentration of alcohol was not high enough to cut out the fuel knocking, it gave an increase in mileage of 2 miles per gallon."

CONDITION OF OUR INDUSTRIAL CENTERS

In our leading industrial centers today a very large percentage of the population is out of work and is on relief.

At the present time we have reached a parting of the ways—it is necessary that we now choose which road we shall take. We have been traveling down the road of deflation for 10 years, reducing markets, limiting production, and lowering prices. We have come to the place where we must either begin to scale down all debts or else we must again, in some manner, increase the incomes of the general public, agriculture and industry alike, or we may expect tax rebellion—mortgages, notes, and debts of all kinds to be repudiated. Such chaos would entirely disrupt our government and cause untold hardships on our people. We urge you to throw all of your power and all of your influence behind this plan that will expand markets, expand incomes and thus stop the disastrous flight toward absolute ruin.

Boy Scout News

TROOP 158

For the first time in its two years of history Legion Troop 158 has won a blue streamer. This award is presented to the troops fulfilling all the requirements of their quota. Troop 158 fulfilled its quota and went over it.

A large percentage of the troop journeyed to Williamsport last night to attend a Court of Review held there. The majority of the scouts there were from 158. The Court was a large one about thirty boys being present. Troop 158 received twenty Merit Badges, three second class and one first class.

Those receiving Merit Bedges were Mark G. Maxey, Civics, First Aid To Animals, and Farm Mechanics; John Maxey, Civics, Chemistry, First Aid, Handicraft, and Scholarship; William Pile, Franklin Glitt, Jim Price, Donald Beatty, and Paul Steyers, Firemanship; Robert Betts, Firemanship and Cooking; Earl Garner, Cooking and Firemanship; Robert Styers, Metal Work; and Orris Bosworth, Woodcarving and Carpentry.

Those passing second class were Robert Betts, Franklin Glitt, and Donald Beatty. The first class boy was Dudley Iles.

The Troop is going ahead with leaps and bounds under its new leadership. It is putting forth a Harmonica Band which should be good. Plans for getting a troop flag are well under way. The meetings which have almost perfect attendance are unusually sappy, peppy, and instructive. Much time is spent on marching and advancement. The troop committeemen have been attending regularly and much interest is shown.

The goal for the year is every scout in uniform, every possible scout first class, and a full troop of registered scouts.

—Mark G. Maxey

Store Kreuger Gems

NEW YORK—Gems and some of the furnishings from the apartment of Ivan Kreuger, Swedish match king, whose suicide in Paris more than a year ago, rocked the financial world, are stored in a New York warehouse. They are estimated to be worth from $50,000 to $100,000.

WETS BELIEVE

Lawrence, of Cleveland, and Rep W M. Goodwin of Hamilton, Democratic whip, were to lead the floor fight for the wets.

Wets feared they had lost at least one vote by the illness of Rep Kingsley A. Taft (R), of Cleveland Absent from yesterday's session, he was reported to be ill at his home and not likely to be here today.

A revolt against the bill, led by Rep Grant P. Ward (R), of Columbus, in an attempt to first gain passage of a mortgage moratorium measure, threatened to cause a set back in plans of wets to get a vote today.

CLAIMS 10 VOTES

Claiming 10 votes, Ward said he would not vote for the beer bill until the Senate had permitted a vote on the Best moratorium bill, which allows judges to proclaim two-year suspensions in individual cases A hearing on the bill was scheduled today in the Senate judiciary committee.

Ward demanded that Senator Joseph N. Ackerman (R), of Cleveland, author of the beer bill, persuade the judiciary committee to report the bill out.

"You're trying to conduct a filibuster," Ackerman replied He agreed, however, to assist.

Introduced by Rep Charles S Best (R), of Columbus, the moratorium bill has already passed the House. Ward said he demanded no assurances of passage on sales up to twenty cents, and on sales from twenty cents to fifty cents, a penny tax, from fifty cents to one dollar, two cents, etc. The law of average makes the tax work out very satisfactorily. The merchant is responsible for two per cent of the gross sales and he must see to its collection. When the public becomes tax conscience they will gladly pay, especially when they realize that by paying a sales tax they are reducing their real estate tax.

"Just show me that the bill is coming to a vote in the Senate and I'll release the beer votes," he told Ackerman.

"I wish to make this point clear this is not a manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers, retailers or merchants tax but a consumers tax, paid by the consumer, paid once and once only

"Another point I wish to make is that I am not speaking of another tax or an additional tax, but another form of tax, to be used wholly as a replacement tax, for the present burdensome real estate tax

"I will agree that the ideal general sales tax system would be one adopted by the Federal government and allocated back to the states, but inasmuch as the Federal Government does not see fit to adopt this form of tax at present the states must take it upon themselves to adopt such legislation as is necessary for their own well being. That is why the tax must be collected at the point of ultimate consumption. It is readily apparent that a manufactures tax, placed on the commodity at the source, and eventually passed on to the consumer, would immediately place the manufacturer in one state in direct competition with the manufacturers of another State

"I do not advocate a sales tax to be levied for the purpose of providing more money to spend, but to relieve the over-burdened taxpayer by broadening the base of taxation that all may contribute something to the support of government; distributing it not only as to the number of people paying the tax, but with reference to the load of the individual payer who is never allowed to become indebted to the government. His taxes are never allowed to accumulate. He pays them day by day in such small amounts that he never realizes a burden."
